Abstract

The book is addressed primarily to the students of the Department of Photography and Audiovisual Arts, of the Technological Educational Institute (TEI) of Athens. It is an introductory guide to the technologies of digital text, digital photographic imaging, digital audio and video, including an introduction to hypertext language HTML.

It focuses on the principles and concepts necessary to understand the structure of the media and is designed as a basis of student introduction on the later use of relevant hardware and software applications for the production of audiovisual content.
