Abstract

The book is a practical guide to cataloguing library materials according to the new RDA standard. It is intended for library science students and professionals to introduce them to the basic principles and philosophy of the new code. It can be used for individual training or for teaching in library science departments, seminars, and presentations. The book includes:

- A description of the new theoretical framework of the cataloguing standard. - An analysis of the steps necessary to create a bibliographic record for books, videos and other types of material. - Guidelines to help librarians identify and create established records for names, corporate bodies, works, and expressions. - Examples and exercises to help you get a better handle on all of the above.
